

WHO KILLED TRUTH?

A CONVERSATION WITH JILL LEPORE

Today, we witness a striking indifference to and obfuscation of truth. In parts of government, the media, and other key sectors of culture, the imperative to seek and tell truth is often ignored, even viewed with contempt.

But was this always the case? How did we come to find ourselves in this “post-truth” moment?

Join us for a conversation with Jill Lepore as she delineates key moments in American history that shape our understandings of truth today.

Jill Lepore is the David Woods Kemper '41 Professor of American History at Harvard University. She is also a staff writer at The New Yorker, and the host of the podcast, The Last Archive. A prize-winning professor, she teaches classes in evidence, historical methods, humanistic inquiry, and American history. She is the author of many award-winning books, including the international bestseller, These Truths: A History of the United States (2018). Her latest book, IF THEN: How the Simulmatics Corporation Invented the Future (2020) offers a revelatory account of the Cold War origins of the data-mad, algorithmic twenty-first century.
